Social activities, events attract HHSers

After deciding to take in a movie, Dense Daniels and Terry Hendon head for the River Oaks Theatre.

Passing thru the "operating room," onlookers watch as "doctors" work on "Scream in the Dark" victim.

Pausing momentarily, Dianna Larkin checks her position on one of many maps located along Sandridge Nature Center observation trails.

Trying his luck on the Circus pinball game, freshman Jim Mazur spends free time at Times Square in Woodmar.

HHSers found enjoyment in a variety of social activities.

Annual events such as Campus Life's "Scream in the Dark" spook house attracted a number of Wildcats, as did Saturday browsing at River Oaks Shopping Center and more quiet times at the nearby Sandridge Nature Center.

Furthering school relationships, couples frequented local movie theaters, concerts and school sponsored events.

Searching for favorite albums, Gratia Allen and Jim Mazur visit new Rockin' Horse Records store.

Enjoying autumn, freshmen Dianna Larkin and Denise Daniels relax at Sandridge Nature Center in Illinois.

After eating their lunches, Hammond High students utilize the remainder of their lunch hours to socialize with friends.

Bells ringing, lockers slamming and friends shouting greetings to one another all made up school life for HHSers.

Inclusive of classes, teachers, tests, after school practices and club activities, students found their lives crowded by busy schedules most of the time.

The importance of passing tests was little by the importance of experiences and knowledge gained when among peers and authority.

When all totaled, school life at HHS prepared students for adult life.

Gathering at their lockers, juniors Dele Bailey, Cynthia Gates and Joyce Anderson meet between classes.

With the halls cleared, Beatrice Davis finds a quiet spot to study for a next hour exam.

School life
keeps students busy, readies them
for future

Keeping clear of hall traffic, Gloria Carpenter and Ken Jones make plans for later in the evening.

Following routine of lunchtime, senior Arece Hampton returns tray after finishing meal.

Beautiful fall weather attracts sophomores John Moore and Jim Schweisthal for a game of basketball.

Sunshiny Saturday brings junior boys together for an afternoon football game at Indi-Ilili park.

Students use after-school hours, run errands, relax

After school jobs, helping out at home, homework and running errands filled HHSers time outside of school.

Meeting with friends, students walked home together during warm-weather months. Some students hurried to get to their part-time jobs, while others rushed home to babysit and help out with family duties.

Homework was completed accompanied by stereo music or favorite television programs.

Helping out with the grocery shopping, junior Nancy Laskarin compares prices for best selection.

Students participate in homecoming festivities

Beginning half time procession, escorted senior princesses Cheryl Stewart and Joyce Linos lead court.

Overcome with joy, senior queen Gail Hilbrich receives congratulations from Bill Gatewood.

Enthusiasm for homecoming festivities grew as the game against Morton Governors drew near.

As the week's activities were presented, school spirit heightened. Elections were held, and Friday night's half time provided association president Bill Brahos the opportunity to announce Gail Hilbrich the '75 Homecoming Queen.

Putting a damper on the homecoming dance, Cats fell to Governors 14-0.

HHSers participated in various activities devised for fund raising, entertainment and just plain fun.

Organizations challenged faculty and other organizations for victories in volleyball, basketball and tug of wars.

A rock concert and numerous other auditorium sessions provided entertaining relaxation for students during the day.

Beating the exhausted faculty at tug-of-war, the victorious juniors win with overpowering class spirit.

Performing in the Hammond High School Auditorium, Air Force Rock Band TIME entertains students.

Injured in play, Mr. Leroy Harwell receives assistance from team members during junior vs. faculty game.

Activities involve, entertain HHSers

Referee Sally Woodrick penalizes player Mr. Charles Sizemore for checking violation.

Coach Leroy Harwell shoots for the faculty over junior Charles Cook as other players look on.

HHSers involve themselves

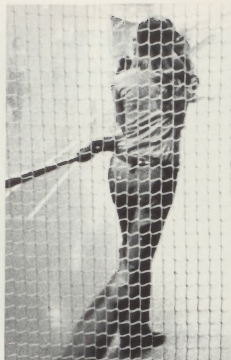

HHSers involved themselves in Association sponsored mini-courses during the spring of '75.

Three days were set aside for students and teachers to expand their interests in courses such as guitar, tennis, weight watching, child development, golf, numerology and various others. Participants chose 3 2-hour mini-courses to fill out the day. Many courses took to the out of doors, while others utilized the classrooms, lab and gym facilities.

Mini-courses exposed students to subjects of every interest.

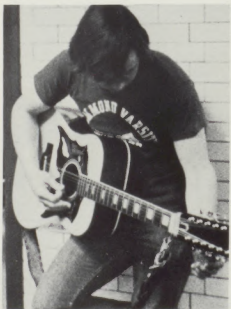

Tired boy visits Child Development course.

While participating in baseball mini-courses, HHS student practices swinging techniques.

During spring mini-courses, algebra teacher Mr. James Ruf demonstrates techniques used in numerology.

Loosening muscles, interested girls participate in mini-exercise class.

During mini-courses, seniors Liz Sneed and Susan Mrache participate in Child Development classes.

Dramatists perform three productions

Building props, painting scenery, long rehearsals, makeup and costumes were all part of HHS dramatists efforts to perform '76 productions.

Members acted out two dramas, "Who-dunit" and "The Death and Life of Sneaky Fitch."

Stage crew members worked behind the scenes, hammering, painting and working lights and curtains.

Applying make-up on junior David Ball, senior Joy Phillips prepares for the production of "Who-dunit."

Operating control panel, Jim Whitfield and Jack Pearson adjust stage lights for proper effect.

Dancing girls show a little leg during performance of "The Death and Life of Sneaky Fitch."

"Rackham," the fastest gun in the west, (Bill Van Natta) fatally shoots "Sneaky Fitch," the town coward.

Using her charm, "Maroon" (Renee Richards) leads "Sheriff Olgelsby" (Brett Dennis) in for a drink.

Explaining upcoming scene, narrator Joy Phillips sings western number accompanied by folk guitar.

Cutting out sets for production, stage crew member junior Jack Pearman prepares for upcoming drama.

senior prom
recalls precious moments

Standing away from the crowd, senior Francine Winters and her date make plans for after prom.

Couples crowd onto floor dancing to the music of DEVIL'S WORKSHOP during post-prom festivities.

Capitalizing on prom theme, Sue Stessel and her escort share their own "Precious Moment."

Watching couples on the floor, junior Janet Hansen and senior Rick Jones decide to sit one out and rest awhile.

Plenty of good food makes the evening complete for prom couples.

Friday, May 20, juniors and seniors of HHS attended prom at Great Oaks Club, Cedar Lake, Indiana.

Junior class officers headed prom committee and devised theme, "Precious Moments."

Bob Wilson and His Orchestra played Prom music while DEVIL'S WORKSHOP provided post-prom entertainment.

Being congratulated by principal Dr. F. Kenneth Feuerbach, Claire Ventimiglia is announced as valedictorian.

Graduates listen as the invocation is delivered.

Seated on stage, National Honor Society members gained special recognition during Honors Day program.

Entering into the gymnasium, two by two, seniors make traditional graduation march at start of ceremonies.

June 5, commencement services were given in the HHS gymnasium for members of the Class of 1975.

Valedictorian Claire Ventimiglia addressed the student body and guests, as did salutatorian Steve Weiland.

May 22, auditorium session honored seniors for outstanding achievements. Dr. F. Kenneth Feuerbach announced all special awards in lieu of representatives. Senior counselor Mr. Herbert Wattam presented outstanding academics and scholastic awards. Mr. Bernie Krueger named Outstanding Athlete of the Year Award.

Foreign Language, English, Art, Math and Science Departments, Athletics, Choral and Band Departments recognized exceptional seniors with awards.

June 1, 89th annual HHS Baccalaureate Services were conducted in auditorium. Rev. R. Duncan served as speaker.

Addressing her classmates, senior class vice-president Betty Bickert speaks on graduation day.

Seniors reflect; await graduation

Completing academic requirements, filling out college applications, ordering announcements and measuring for caps and gowns occupied 76 seniors as graduation time approached.

Seniors felt mixed emotions as the excitement of the adult world loomed ahead and the insecurity of leaving the familiar surroundings of school kept tugging at their hearts.

'76ers were not left much time to ponder on their thoughts, though. Grads were kept busy taking SAT, ACT, and ASVAB tests, not to mention the annual Betty Crocker Homemakers test and the National Math Exam.

Sophomores ordered rings, participated in PSAT and raised funds for '77 prom.

After selecting class officers, the class of '78 proceeded to think up fund raising projects to finance the prom they would sponsor in '77. Selling M&M candies, car washes and bake sales were all included as ways to help pay dance expenses.

'78ers ordered rings from Herff Jones in January and took the PSAT exams in November.

Frosh adapt quickly, find their place

Touring the building, receiving schedules, meeting faculty and each other filled Wildkittens' 1st days at HHS.

Pushed into totally new and unfamiliar surroundings, frosh felt lost and lonely, but not for long.

After being sold HERALD subscriptions and elevator passes, freshmen learned fast and soon found their place amongst the rest of the student body.

Linguists perfect foreign dialects

Developing pronunciation and grammar skills, linguists practiced in classrooms and the language lab to perfect foreign dialects.

French, German and Spanish language students used text and workbooks to improve reading and grammar skills and listened to tapes and films to better pronunciation and gain an understanding of the language.

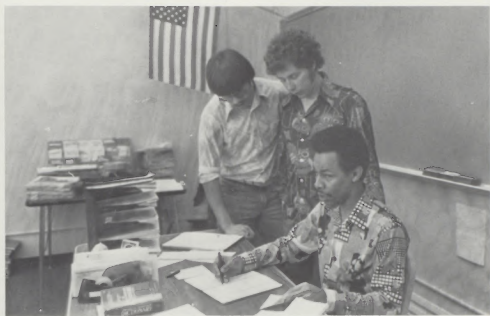

Reviewing corrections, teacher Mr. Tom Schwartz, looks over problem points with Ron Rybarczyk.

Filling up plates of goodies, seniors Juanita Pollard and Denise Spisak participate in French Festival.

Staying after class, juniors Jeff Stevens and George Rubick discuss assignment with instructor Mr. Harwell.

HHSers develop English skills

Developing speaking techniques, as well as writing and reading skills, HHSers took a variety of English courses.

Basic English courses gave underclassmen an introduction to all phases of learning. Upperclassmen polished their writing skills in comp classes and studied American and world writings in literature courses.

Journalism classes offered students an opportunity to learn the workings of a newspaper and yearbook with a chance of later gaining positions on Herald or Dunes staffs.

Standing up front, junior Andrea Eucce reads aloud her composition to Comp 5 classmates.

Using standardized grammar workbooks, Mrs. Margaret Mertens' senior English class concentrates on chapter test.

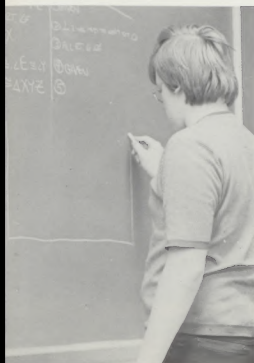

HHsers excel in department electives

Offering individual challenge, computer math class prepares senior Bob Kaminsky for college calculus.

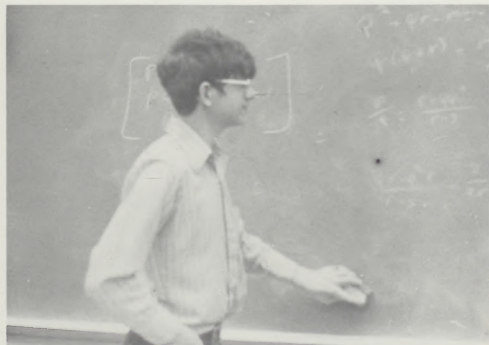

Looking over algebra assignment, sophomore Keith Brown makes final corrections before turning in test.

Finishing a sketch of a proof, sophomore Ron Rybarzyk works out a problem on the board 2nd hour.

Consulting on geometry homework, sophomores John Moore and Mark Sokol use a calculator to get answers.

Working with rational root theorem, senior Karl Schwartz studies problem during math analysis class.

Working with numbers and their theories, "mathematicians" use graphs, formulas and computers to solve problems.

Fulfilling graduating musts, HHSers chose from general math to algebra and geometry classes.

Students wishing to continue in the department excelled in algebra-trigonometry courses.

Advanced HHSers participated in computer math programs offered.

As Mr. Harold Binkert lectures on world history events, sophomore class takes notes.

Conducting discussion, Mr. Ronald Galosich's 2nd hour U.S. History class debates events of the civil war.

Giving speech during Mr. Galosich's government class, senior Mary Grandbois stresses point.

Using blackboard to emphasize point, Mr. Frank Carroll instructs 2nd hour geography students.

Students participate in required and elective courses

Required and elective social science courses allowed students to study man in the past, present and future.

History classes gave sophomores a look at the past cultures of world civilizations and juniors a look at the development of the United States.

Seniors studied, in depth, the governmental and economic systems of the world.

Psychology and sociology courses provided students with a better understanding of human behavior as an individual and as a society.

Leading class in group discussion in U.S. History I, junior Carolyn McKinney sits at podium.

Students prepare for jobs in business

Preparing themselves for accounting, business and secretarial job opportunities, business students elected to take typing, shorthand, business management and clerical practice courses.

General business courses offered students a basic understanding of business workings, while advanced classes made it possible for students to become proficient in specialized areas of the business world.

Trying business technique on adding machine, junior Sue Jackson scans instructional manual.

Students concentrate while working with adding machines during 5th hour clerical practice.

Improving their speed and accuracy, students during 2nd hour typing class practice their time writings.

Performing on adding machine, senior Mark Earl takes test in clerical practice class.

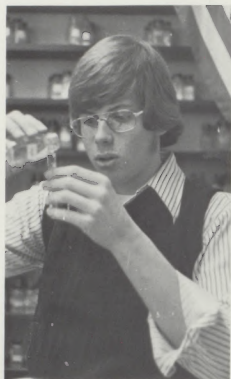

Patricia Nash and Sue Jackson work intently on the 10-key adding machine in clerical practice.

Students discover theories, principles thru experiments

Observing and drawing microscopic animals, Mrs. Keer's biology class utilizes microscopes.

Experimenting with acids, chemistry student Tim Hunt adds chemical to solvent to observe reaction.

Going over experiments, Don Bittick and Russ Kowalisyn look through lab books.

Senior Faith Russert carefully dissects the spinal cord of the fetal pig while fellow classmates look on.

Discussing topic, junior Sharon Baumgartner and David Scott review laboratory reports.

HHSers developed a better understanding of the laws of nature through studying biological, physical and chemical sciences. Freshmen fulfilled state requirements of 2 semesters of life studies.

Upperclassmen prepared for post-secondary education by taking electives of chemistry and physics.

David Scott earned a blue ribbon in the Calumet Region Science Fair, becoming eligible to enter his project into national competition.

Students gain coordination, learn sports-manship

Physical education courses taught coordination, sportsmanship and teamwork in gym and swimming classes.

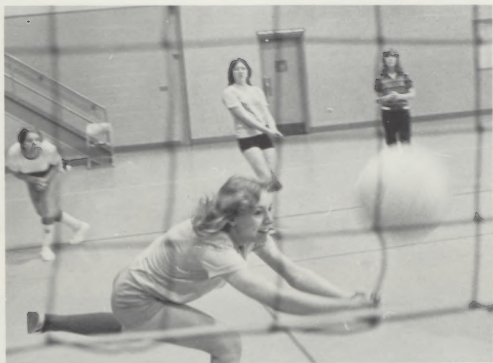

Fulfilling state requirements, students took a semester of gym and a semester of swimming at the HHS facilities.

After taking roll call, teacher Mr. George Hall assigns freshman boys to swimming groups according to the students' ability.

Choral department performs, raises money

Learning new scores, girls' chorus goes over sheet music while Mrs. Buss plays out tune on the piano.

During 2nd hour boys' chorus members practice numbers for upcoming spring performance.

Practical and Industrial Arts develop skills

HHSers developed practical and industrial arts skills in the facilities at HHS.

Practical arts courses provided students with a chance to learn basic and advanced culinary and sewing skills.

Family development courses gave students an insight into family relations and their problems.

Industrial arts proved a stepping stone for many students to be utilized in future college and technical courses, as well as apprenticeships.

Classes offered a basic learning of working with woods, metals, electricity, and drafting.

Finishing her pants in advanced clothing, sophomore Michelle Perdue steam presses the darts.

Following markings carefully, senior seamstress Cynthia Madden cuts out her next pattern.

Using slide rule, mechanical drawing student Chuck Hachnel drafts on lines as partner Bill Daniels observes.

Preparing mechanical drawing assignment, senior Mary Grandbois follows directions.

During electricity class, students assemble AC-DC motors in the workshop.

During Mr. Ray Ball's Art 1 class, students work as a group constructing papier-mâché masks.

Working diligently, senior George Gutierrez completes assignments during art class on a table loom.

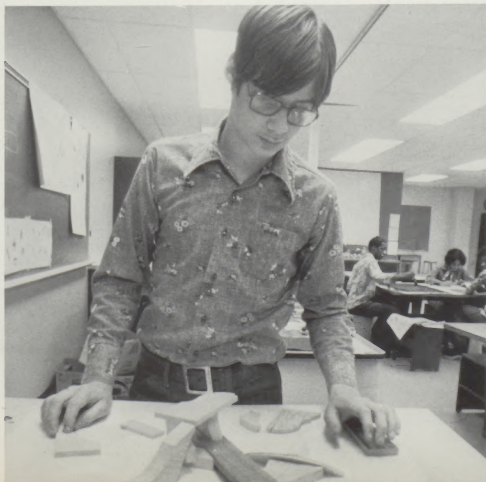

Talents produce creative, unique works

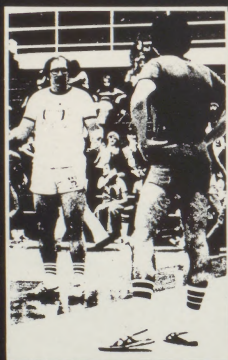

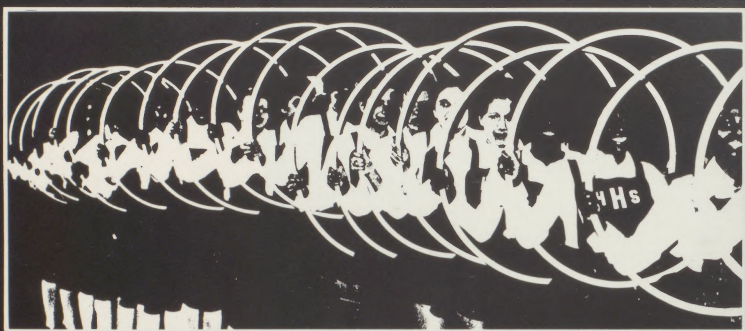

Creative and unique artworks made by HHsers were viewed by the entire student body in the Art Department's gallery outside classrooms.

Students studied shape, form and color, among other things, to perfect their artistry. Talents emerged as "artists" expressed themselves in their works.

Staffers publish Dunes, capture '76 memories

Dunes staffers worked long hours to put together a quality yearbook that would capture '76 memories for HHers.

Special features in the '76 issue included eight pages of color with pictures of local bicentennial celebrations scattered over spreads.

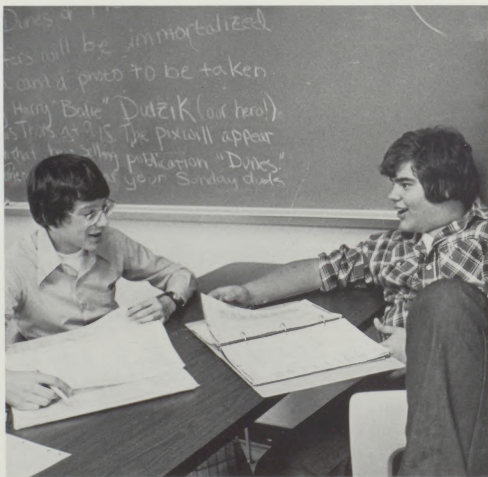

The Dunes was printed by Taylor Publishing Co. and photographs were taken by Bodie Studios.

During annual end-of-the-year picture sale, Paul Smith sorts thru pictures to find familiar faces.

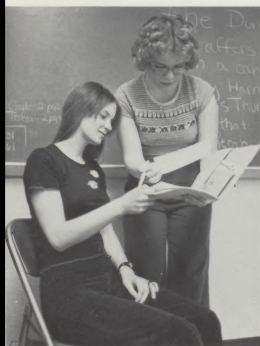

Discussing spread, editor Christine Carras requests shots from photographer Jim Whitfield.

Looking through folder, assistant editor Teresa Merch discusses ad contract with business manager Gayle Pavlovick.

Inflation hits staff; Herald goes tri-weekly

Rising costs of printing and student disinterest prompted staffers to publish HERALD tri-weekly, rather than traditional bi-weekly schedule.

Hoping to gain additional knowledge and "tricks of the trade" 1976-77 editorial staff was enstated at the beginning of 2nd semester. Former senior journalists served as consultants.

Pointing out an appropriate scene, senior Joanne Grant aids her co-worker, photographer Leroy Lindsey.

Contributions recognized with honorarys

For accomplishments earned as HHSers, faculty and administration members recognized students with awards and memberships to honorary organizations.

Graduating 1st and 2nd in the senior class, Suzee Gostylo and Debbie Sokol were named valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively.

Gostylo was also selected as the Betty Crocker Award winner and reached National Merit Finalist status. Rudy Chapa was voted by faculty and administration as the 1st male recipient of the DAR.

Contributions made to HHS and academic proficiency played roles in selecting students to the National Honor Society.

Sophomores displaying the same qualities were elected to the Junior National Honor Society.

Eight members of publications staffs received membership into Quill and Scroll, a national honorary society for excelling high school journalists.

After striking putt, sophomore Tony Krupinski watches to see if ball drops into cup for important shot.

Team attains new coach, sets record

Figuring sand shot, varsity hacker junior Jack Schlesinger estimates distance to the green.

Increasing awareness in the widening scope of women's athletics, girls teams attracted participants and spectators alike. Team members were occupied by hours of practice and hard work showing endurance and determination on game nights.

Varsity and b-team volleyballers ended with season records of 3-8 each. Varsity and reserve basketball teams slated 1-9 and 2-8 records, respectively.

The young program, constantly expanding, suffered numerous losses but gained experience for future seasons.

During HHS girls home basketball game, Linda Mabry jumps high for possession of ball against Morton opponent.

Blocking opponent's spike, junior Carmen Dent defends Wildcat lead in a match versus Whiting.

Competing for jump ball, b-ball'er Robin Thompson stretches hands high against Gladiator opponent during sectional.

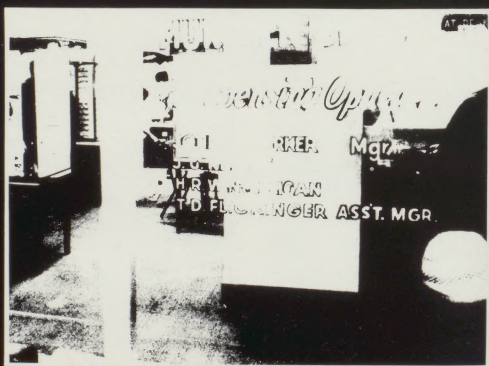

Women's athletics widen scope; program expands

Battling Gavitt opponent for rebound in conference game, sophomore Beatrice Davis jumps in air.

Reflections
Of High School:
Days Suspended Between Childhood
And Life.

Protected
Isolated.
Manicured.
And Safe.

Were we surprised?
Were we committed?
Weren't we Innocent?

Reflections
Of A

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased by 1.1 million (Office for National Statistics 1999). The number of people aged 65 and over is projected to increase to 6.5 million by 2011, and the number of people aged 75 and over to 4.5 million (Office for National Statistics 1999).

There is a growing awareness of the need to develop services to meet the needs of older people, and a number of initiatives have been developed to address this need. The Department of Health (1999) has published a strategy for older people, which sets out the government's commitment to improve the lives of older people. The strategy is based on three main principles: (1) to ensure that older people have the opportunity to live independently; (2) to ensure that older people have access to the services they need; and (3) to ensure that older people are treated with respect and dignity.
